The School of Life Project

Dear Parents and care givers,

What if you had a video time capsule of your child growing up? And what if that video time capsule included your child, on a yearly basis, answering key life questions, questions that helped your child become more self-aware, confident and introspective? What would this be worth to you and to your child?

Byron Bay High School and Byron Bay Public School are the first schools in Australia to offer the School of Life Project.

This revolutionary program is the brainchild of filmmaker Rick Stevenson and is featured in schools and organisations in countries worldwide, including the U.S.A, Mexico, Canada, Russia, South Africa and Germany.

Students use an automated video monitor located at school to answer age-appropriate questions each year until they graduate from High School. Each year about 40 minutes of video will be collected and stored securely. The footage is made available to students when they leave high school.

The cost of the video journal program, which includes cloud-based storage, is $30 a year. Considering it usually costs $30 for school photos per year this is an exceptional opportunity to capture your child growing up.

To register please follow the link below and then pay $30 to the front office at school. The school is ready to commence filming immediately.

If families have questions about The School of Life Project, please visit the website or contact your school.
